A BIT OF PHILOSOPHY GRIGGSBY'S STATION PLAMES WHITCOMB RILEY ap's got his pattent-right, and rich as all creation;

But where's the peace and comfort that we all had before? Le's oo a-visitin' back to Gricosby's Station-27 Back where we ust to be so happy and so pore!

The likes of us a livin here! It's jes' a mortal pity Stro see us in this great big house, with coarpets on the stairs.

And the pump right in the kitchen! And the city! city!city!-

And nothin' but the city all around us ever'-The wheres!

Los go a visitin' back to Griggsby's Station-Back where the latch-string's a-hangin from the door.

And ever neighbor round the place is dear as a relation

"ack where we ust to be so happy and so pore!

"Keep the Day With Gladness"

As a religious people who do not believe the world is ruled by chance, but by an intelligent and beneficent Providence and the Most High rules in the kingdom of the children of men, it is right that we should, from the chief magistrate down to the liumblest citizen, be called to recognize and thank the beneficent Author of all our mercies.

God has rolled the seasons round. Seedtime and harvest have come, and we have received again the kindly fruits of the earth. And because of all these manifold blessings we can say, as probably no other people have ever said, that the lines are fallen unto us in pleasant places. We should appreciate our heritage, and for it we should "enter into God's d gates with praise and into his o courts with thanksgiving."

But above all-"KEEP THE DAY WITH GLADNESS."

"Truxton Kings." Etc.

When I came to that part of the story where I seemed Turnowsy of duplicity in connection with the frescoes she betrayed intense excitement. "Of course it was all a bluff on my part," I explained.

"But you were nearer the truth than you thought," she said, compressing her lips. After a moment she went on: "Count Helicontalit sold the originals over three years ago. I was here with Maris at the time of the transacthen and when the palntings were removed. Maris acted as an intermedury in the deal. Hohenduhl received $200,000 for the paintings, but they were worth it. I have reason to be-Heve that Maris had a fourth of the amount for his commission. So, you see, you were right he your surmise.

"The infernal rascall. Where are the originals, countess?"

They are in my father's villa at Newport," she said. "I intended speaking of this to you before, but I was airaid your pride would be fort. Of course I should have spoken if it came to the point where you readly conshiered having those forgeries restored."

"He will challenge you," she went on nervously. "He has fought three duels. He is not a physical coward." Her dark eyes were full of dread.

I hesitated "Would you be vitally Interested In the outcome of such an affair?" I asked. "I mean on Rosemary's account. He-he is her father, you see. It would mean"-

A slow flush mounted to her brow. "That is precisely what I was thinking, Mr. Staurt. It would be-unspeakably dreadful."

I spool over her. My heart was pounding heavily. She must have seen the peril that by he my eyes, for she anddenly slipped out of the chair and faced me, the thish dying in her cheek. lenving it as pale as Ivory

"No," said I positively. "They were jolly parties, and I shall miss them " She looked away quickly. "And if all goes well I shall soon be safely or thy way to America. Then you will be rid of me completely."

I was startled. "You mean that there is a plan afoot to to snunggle you out of the country?"

"Yes. And I fear I shall have to trouble you again when it comes to that. You must help me, Mr Smart" I nodded slowly. Help her to get away? I hadn't thought of that late ly. The prospect left me rather cold
